The following roads and parking areas are closed to all public vehicle traffic except for those on official government business:

- HQ administrative roads
- Balanced Rock maintenance area access

ROCK CLIMBING

Definitions:

Technical Rock Climbing is defined as ascending or descending a rock formation utilizing specialized rock climbing equipment.

Canyoneering is defined as cross country travel involving occasional ascending or descending a rock formation utilizing rock climbing equipment.

Free Climbing and Clean Aid Climbing are minimum impact approaches that employ chocks, stoppers, nuts and camming devices, rather than pitons or bolts, for protection or direct support. These are climbing aids that are removable and do not damage the rock.

Aid Climbing is the direct use of fixed or placed protection –pitons, nuts, bolts, rivets, spring-loaded cams, etc.–to support a climber’s weight and assist in the climber’s ascent. In general, aid techniques are reserved for pitches where free climbing is difficult to impossible, and extremely steep and long routes. Most difficult aid climbs still require pitons or other techniques using a hammer.

Clean Aid Climbing is aid climbing without the use of bolting gear, pitons or other gear that scars the rock or becomes fixed after ascent.

Canyoneering (also known as Canyoning) is defined as cross country travel involving descending into canyons or major rock formations using a variety of techniques that are associated with technical descents — those that require rappels (abseils) and ropework, technical climbing or down-climbing, technical jumps, and/or technical swims.

Bivying (also known as bivouac) is the act of camping while on a climbing route above the ground. This may involve nothing more than lying down or sitting on a rock ledge overnight. If no rock ledge is available, a cot or ‘portaledge’ is suspended from anchors to serve as a bivouac.

Slacklining/Highlining is defined as walking on a rope or other line that is anchored between rock formations, trees, or any other natural features. Height of the rope above the ground is immaterial.

The following closures, conditions, and restrictions apply to rock climbing or similar activities such as, but not limited to, technical rock climbing, free climbing, canyoneering and clean aid climbing within Arches National Park:

Closures

- Any arch or natural bridge named on the United States Geological Survey topographical map covering Arches National Park.
- Balanced Rock - Closed to climbing year-round
- Bubo - Closed from January 1st through June 30th
- Any arch or natural bridge named on the United States Geological Survey 7.5 minute topographical maps covering Arches National Park is closed to climbing year-round.
- Industrial Disease on the Devil Dog Spire is closed from January 1st through June 30th

Restrictions

Climbing and canyoneering within Arches National Park shall be either free climbing or clean aid climbing, except as described below.

- No new permanent climbing hardware may be installed in any fixed location. If an existing bolt or other hardware item is unsafe, it may be replaced. This will limit all climbing to existing routes or new routes not requiring placement of fixed anchors.
- Climbing anchors and/or protection points may not be placed with the use of a hammer except to replace existing belay and rappel anchors and bolts on existing routes, or for emergency self-rescue.
- If an existing software item (sling, runner etc.) is unsafe, it may be replaced.
- Software (webbing, accessory cords, etc.) that is left in place shall match the rock surface in color.
- The intentional removal of lichen or plants from rock is prohibited.

- The physical altering of rock faces such as chiseling, glue reinforcement of existing holds, and gluing of new holds is prohibited.
- The use of motorized power drills is prohibited.
- Bivying requires a backcountry permit and adheres to the same rules and regulations set forth for backcountry camping.
- The use of white chalk (or chalk substitutes) for climbing are prohibited. Chalk or substitutes must be of a color that blends with the native rock.
- Fixed ropes may not be left in place for more than 24 hours. Fixed ropes left in place longer than 24 hours shall be considered "abandoned property" and removed.
- Slacklining is prohibited.

USE LIMITS, CONDITIONS, AND RESTRICTIONS
